DIRECTOR'S NOTES

I came of age in the early 1980s. Yes I had big hair or donned the Pat Benatar look. I must confess I wore the same dress that Ariel wore in Footloose the movie only two years prior to the movie coming out in the theatres so I believe “Ariel” stole my dress. I loved this movie when it came out and am now excited to be directing this production.

The main conflict in Footloose falls between youthful expression and rigid censorship, alongside the importance of communication and empathy between generations. The story is as true today as it was forty years ago, heck since the beginning of time even. How many of us see ourselves fighting for or wanting something that the older generation controlled or still controls. How many of us have actually tried to change things. When one person finally makes a courageous move to propose an idea or effect change, and then friends and allies support the individual or idea, change can and does occur. Maybe we need more of this.

It truly takes a village to put on a production such as this and I am most grateful to the cast, production team and all the staff for their tireless work and effort. A special thanks to John Holst and Isaiah Mateas who were there day in and day out as their support and input was invaluable. I also thank Kevin and Tiana for their exceptional work and to Adam Green for stepping up to work with the cast on music daily. Maya Duran and Shara Main... you are my unsung heroes and my rock. I especially want to thank my family for their love and understanding which allows me to play theater.

I hope you enjoy this show. It is truly a labor of love for all involved and I know that EVERYBODY is just gonna cut loose with Footloose!

Regards,

Dianna
